‘The Great Molasses Flood’

A hundred years ago—on January 15, 1919—one of the more bizarre episodes in Boston’s history resulted in the deaths of 21 people and even more horses, the destruction of numerous buildings and the crushing of the elevated railroad. A 40-foot wave of molasses inundated the North End neighborhood and some claim evidence of the disaster still persists today. Joe Manning will tell us about it and his family’s connection to the event.
A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT,

THE JOY of beginning a new year, the positive resolve to accomplish projects, the satisfaction of planning programs for the year, is dampened by the sadness we feel over Archie Coll’s passing. He was a paragon of virtue, a kind, benevolent man who volunteered time and effort to church and community beyond anyone’s imagination. I personally counted him as a friend and advisor and will miss his cheery yet quiet demeanor. Rest in peace, Archie, the work is done.

On the brighter side we continue on our mission to educate young and old alike in the history of Jaffrey. In order to educate we need to preserve the past; in artifacts, in written words, in photos, and in oral history. Keep in mind that “history” can mean any period in the past from our beginnings in the 1700s, to our development in the 1800s, through the 1900s (especially the last half that most of us lived through), and even the early 2000s that today’s school children consider “long ago.” We save and catalog everything!

As the opening script of The Lone Ranger exclaims, “Return with us now to the thrilling days of yesteryear…” Mark your calendars now for some interesting and entertaining programs this year. Happy New Year!

Bruce

And a reminder. The Society’s membership year coincides with the calendar year so you may find a 2019 dues envelope enclosed. (If you don’t find an envelope enclosed, that means you’ve paid up through 2019). Please help the Society by paying promptly.

The Depot in Troy, one of the many sites the Society visited on its AUTUMN OUTING to our neighboring town. We also stopped at Soldiers’ Rock on Route 124, the site of the Marlborough Meetinghouse, the Troy Mills and Troy School, the Troy Meetinghouse and, of course, the Historical Society. It was all capped off by dinner at The Inn at East Hill Farm.

Dean Murder Recap
The centenary of the Dean Murder has come and gone and Jaffrey’s longest running, most infamous and unfailingly compelling unsolved murder…remains unsolved. Thanks to generous grants from the Bean Family Foundation, the Society commemorated the grisly event in numerous ways: Launched a website (deanmurder.org) • Held work sessions attended by interested sleuths • Gave talks at various locations around the region • Mounted exhibits at the Civic Center • Worked on a special Monadnock Ledger-Transcript supplement • And most importantly, commissioned and produced Deep Water, an original play written and performed by Ken Sheldon. Three sold-out performances were presented at the Meetinghouse.

Willa Cather Weekend Big Success
One year of planning paid off with a well-attended celebration of Willa Cather in Jaffrey. A diverse and cooperative committee representing multiple organizations prepared activities that celebrated the 100th anniversary of her publication of My Antonia. Through an exhibit, symposium, music, food, a dramatic production and historical tours, we raised the awareness of Willa Cather’s importance in 20th century literature and her connection to Jaffrey. Attendees came from Nebraska, Texas, Florida, and throughout New England with one half from the Monadnock region. About $2,000 remains in the Willa Cather account, earmarked for further recognition in the future. A semi-permanent exhibit will be developed for the History floor of the Jaffrey Public Library and other Cather projects have been proposed for the community. The Jaffrey Center Village Improvement Society maintains a museum at the Melville Academy and has dedicated a section to Willa Cather.

Laban Ainsworth: A Life

AFTER some years of work, the publication by the Society of Jean Parker Waterbury’s biography of Laban Ainsworth is now in sight. Jean, who died in 2007, was a writer, editor, literary agent, and historian with deep connections to Hancock, New Hampshire, and St. Augustine, Florida, where she was born and raised. She served on the boards of Monadnock Music and the Peterborough Players in New Hampshire and at the St. Augustine Historical Society where she also served as president. Her interest in Laban Ainsworth was sparked by her being the great-great-grandaughter of both Ainsworth and his Baptist opponent Abel Parker.

Although a shortened version of the biography appeared in 2000 in Historical New Hampshire—the New Hampshire Historical Society journal—the full version only existed as a typescript. A Society member discovered a copy in the Jaffrey Public Library and a project was born. The Waterbury family gave its blessing for the Society to publish it and Jean’s son, Whit, has copy-edited the manuscript. A second volume has been prepared to include new and supplementary material such as a Timeline, Genealogy, Description of The Manse, an edited reprint of Leonard Tenney’s Sermon preached at the funeral of The Rev. Laban Ainsworth, relevant excerpts from the Town History, maps, numerous modern and historic images, etc.

It will be issued in both soft and hard cover and should be available in the spring of 2019. A special book launch and discussion of Laban Ainsworth to include his descendants and Waterbury family members is being considered for some convenient time this coming summer.

Toys in the Attic

What do you know about old toys manufactured in the greater Monadnock area?

The Historical Society of Cheshire County is planning for its exhibit on the history of toy making in our area, which will go on display in November. It is seeking information and items to help with this exhibit.

The HSCC already knows a lot but you may have some information that would add to its knowledge base:

What year did Triumph Wringer start manufacturing in Keene? • When did Red Shed Rubber Toys cease operations in Peterborough? • Who was the one-man wood carver of hobby horses in Fitzwilliam? • Do you know anything about D.P. Clark Co.? • When did Mason & Parker close up shop? • Were there any toy manufacturers in Jaffrey?

The Jaffrey Historical Society is loaning its one example (a doll swing, see left), made by the Annett company. If you have any verifiable data on old toys made locally or have any to lend for display please contact the HSCC in Keene at hscc@hsccnh.org or 603-352-9226. And keep us in the loop as well!
